

MR. ROBERT LAWRENCE

JOHN F. KENNEDY

Though the whole nation feels the loss of John F. Kennedy, we, the young people, suffer the greatest loss, for John Kennedy was OUR President. He, too, was young and eager and full of life. In us he placed his hopes for the future. He gave us a challenge in the New Frontier. He opened numerous doorways to the young. He made us feel like an important part of the nation. But hatred took him away from us. Suddenly his handsome smile and warm eyes weren't there anymore. And suddenly from each one of us sprang an emotion we hadn't known we had. We realized the wisdom of his words, the meaning of his purpose. And in the sorrow we felt for his death, we found the courage to go on. And we know that we, the young, must accept his challenge and in his name, raise our nation above the hatred that killed him.

HALFMOON

SHIP OF STATE

Thou, too, sail on, O Ship of State!
Sail on, O Union, strong and great!
Humanity with all its fears,
With all its hopes of future years,
Is hanging breathless on thy fate!

We know what Master laid thy keel,
What Workman wrought thy ribs of steel,
Who made each mast and sail and rope;
What anvils rang, what hammers beat,
In what a forge and what a heat,
Were shaped the anchors of thy hope!

Fear not each sudden sound and shock,
Tis of the wave and not the rock;
Tis but the flapping of the sail,
And not a rent made by the gale!

In spite of rock and tempest's roar,
In spite of false lights on the shore,
Sail on, nor fear to breast the sea!

Our hearts, our hopes, are all with thee,
Our hearts, our hopes, our prayers, our tears,
Our faith triumphant o'er our fears,
Are all with thee—are all with thee!

HENDRICK HUDSON HIGH

Everywhere we turn today, we are surrounded by more and more people. We must be able to get along with them, if not for the sake of Brotherhood, then at least for the sake of humanity's survival. In our attempt to achieve this goal, we have a destination—knowledge. We have, of course, the passengers—ourselves, and our ticket is merely being born into the human race. All we are missing is the Ship to carry us to that lofty destination, but we don't have to go very far to find it.

Any first grader could probably tell us that we obtain knowledge by attending school. However, his outlook would be limited to academic knowledge alone. We might smile at this, yet far too many of us, older but not wiser, have the same outlook. For some, school is studying dates in history, or conjugating verbs in French. Those people do not realize what they are missing. Attending a high school such as Hendrick Hudson can enrich and broaden both our outlooks and our lives. Every day we come into contact with other people—all different. Seeing the same people every day and, at the same time, getting along reasonably well with all of them is an education in itself. Participating in extracurricular activities gives us more contact with our generation, as well as giving us pleasure in the performance of the orchestra, or the successful foul shot. If we view school life in its entirety, we see our own "Ship of State" before us. Now, our voyage is complete.

It is both the ship and the passengers which we honor in the Half Moon. It will be a record of our voyage to keep and recall whenever we desire.

—Carol Anthony

SCHOOL

FACULTY

"What Workman wrought thy ribs of steel."

What really makes a school? "What Workman wrought thy ribs of steel, Who made each mast and sail and rope?" What sets the tone of our school so that it is really our school? More than the student body itself, it is the faculty. It is the faculty which molds us. It is the faculty which builds our school. These men and women are generous—they give to us their knowledge, they give to us their time, they give to us their concern and interest. These men and women give of themselves to mold us for the future. As underclassmen we have seen last year's seniors come back to the school. They come back not to see the school itself once again, but to talk to the teachers, to these people who were so much a part of their lives. Some talk over college—of successes and failures, of hard work, of courses made easy because of work done in high school. Some talk over their present lives—what they have been doing since they graduated, their triumphs, their problems. And why do these students come back? They come because they know they will find an interested, sympathetic and knowing ear. The teachers have taught us more than the required work, more than most of us can realize now. They have "wrought thy ribs of steel," school! They have "made each mast and sail and rope!" They are the builders of students' minds. They are the molders of our lives.

—Suzanne Hurley

TEACHERS' SAYINGS

Mr. Brown: "No girls, you can't play football today."

Mr. Topper: "On the other hand she wore a glove . . . nice day, isn't it?"

Mr. Johnson: "I don't lie!"

Miss Baxter: "So because it is so."

Mr. Lawrence: "Time to clean up!"

Mr. Mills: "Hey kid, watch those eyes!"

Mr. Sherman: "That is to say that the coefficient and the asymptotes are at the abscissa . . . ugly!"

Miss Lo Casio: "Late bell, girls. 30 seconds to change."

Mr. Bump: "Peace, peace."

Mr. Hodgkinson: "That's what we're here for—communication."

Mr. Litchard: "Holy, jumped-up Moses!"

Mr. Rosenblatt: "Use 3 by 5 cards."

Mrs. Wright: "Only one doughnut, girls!"

Miss Murphy: "I love me, whom do you love?"

ACTIVITIES

"Fear not each sudden sound and shock,
Tis of the wave and not the rock."

Our "Ship of State" is made up of many parts, each having a place, a function, and all adding to its solidity. Remove any one of these parts and no doubt a leak would spring . . .

The importance of extracurricular activities in a place of learning can be played up or down, according to one's personal viewpoint. But nevertheless, they are important to the school and to the individual student.

Our numerous activities include, to mention only a few: the Debate Club, now in its third season; the Science Seminar, which after five years, has more participants than ever before; the various organizations of the Music Department; the school newspaper; the A. F. S. Club; and of course, the Student Organization.

One could go on and on, for the list seems endless. What is important, however, is not the number of activities at Hendrick Hudson, but the fact that they form a diversified area of enjoyment for both students and faculty.

So if we fail to get a publication out on time, or we have only one star "mathlete," or we have poor attendance at a concert,

"Fear not each sudden sound and shock,
Tis of the wave and not the rock."

"In what a forge and what a heat
Were shaped the anchors of thy hope!"

If we should look in this book in the year 1989, our fondest memories will be of our accomplishment in sports. We may laugh at the then outmoded forms of attire and styles of play, for they will undoubtedly change; but the things that will never change are the spirit and the fundamental character building values of sports.

Hendrick Hudson has always been noted for its enthusiasm in all sporting events. No matter where the game is played, whether it be away, in the old gym, or in the new one; and no matter if the team wins every game or loses them all, the students of Hendrick Hudson support their teams and show our true school spirit.

Besides giving a person incentive to win, organized athletics show him the value of working toward his goal. Sports give security to the individual in that it helps to draw out and develop his character. Sports become an important part of an individual's social experience. There are few better ways to meet people than by associating with them on the football field or the basketball court.

This is an olympic year and such world renowned stars as Bob Hayes, John Pennel, and Gary Gubner will soon assemble in Tokyo, Japan to add another chapter to sports history. Future chapters in America's or even the world's sports history may be added by the Hendrick Hudson students from our undefeated football and wrestling teams and the championship baseball team of last year. Though the most fun comes from winning (which is something that we haven't been doing too much of this year), there is an old axiom in sports and life, "Somebody has to win and somebody has to lose." We just do our best to stay on top.

UNDERCLASSMEN

"With all its hope of future years"

His heart filled with all the hope of future years, the underclassman enters high school.

After the initial period of adjustment, he begins to think seriously about his future years at Hendrick Hudson. He has many ideas that he is sure will make his the best class ever to attend our school. These ideas are mingled with those of other underclassmen and decisions are made. No matter what the decision, you will always find the loyal underclassman working hard to make every class function a success whether it be decorating for the junior prom or selling tickets to the class play.

Then he is a senior. For a whole year he is no longer an underclassman. Before he realizes it, graduation day arrives, and his wonderful world of games and dances comes to an end.

Yes, it is the end of one life and the beginning of another, a new and exciting life in which he is again an underclassman, this time in the adult world. As he begins his new life, the heart of our underclassman is again filled with all the hope of future years.

SENIORS

"Our hearts, our hopes, our prayers, our tears,
Our faith triumphant o'er our fears,
Are all with thee—are all with thee!"

Who is "Mr. Senior?" A student?—yes, but much more. After four long and fruitful years at Hendrick Hudson, he has finally reached the summit. He is at the very top, with underclassmen following him and his ambitions leading him.

Unfortunately, the impending exodus sometimes encourages him to rest on his laurels, but the real Mr. Senior realizes his duty as a leader and works to make this last year the best ever. Driven by a revitalized school spirit, he seeks to contribute all that he can. His effort becomes a lasting part of the school, and the school becomes a lasting part of him.

Mr. Senior is characterized by happy memories in his past, purpose in his present, and hope in his future. He looks forward to the fast approaching day of graduation. He will be happy, or sad, or frightened, but not indifferent. What will the world ahead be like? He thanks his teachers for their guidance—how much more meaningful their words are now!

As you walk across the stage to get your diploma, Mr. Senior, your fellow citizens will be sitting in the auditorium and watching anxiously. "Our hearts, our hopes, are all with thee."

"Our hearts, our hopes, are all with thee,
Our hearts, our hopes, our prayers, our tears,
Our faith triumphant o'er our fears,
Are all with thee—are all with thee!"

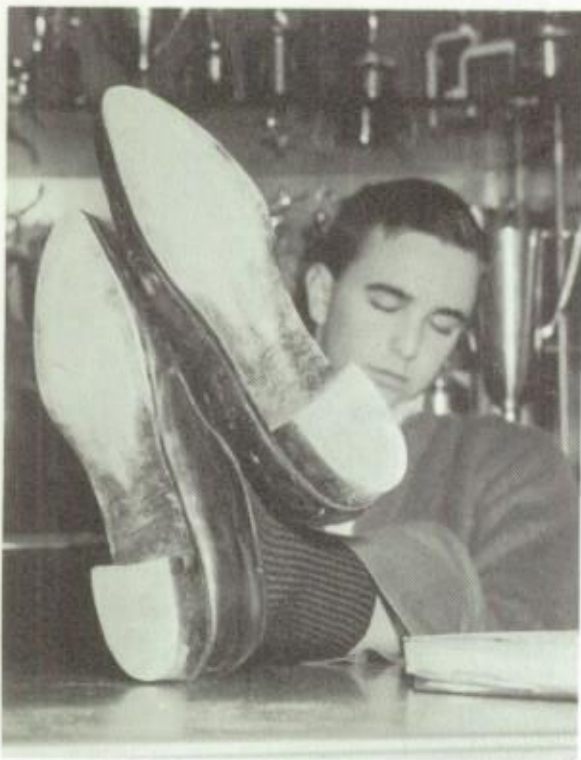

Now we've seen our ship, crew and passengers. It would seem as though we have all the component parts we need to reach our destination. Yet, most of us are nowhere near the frontier of understanding as yet. Some of us may never arrive. Why? Because our voyage is different from the average voyage in one crucial respect. On the typical sea voyage, the passengers depend upon the crew and the ship to take them safely to port. However, on our voyage, the most modern ship and learned crew can not give us knowledge and understanding without our desiring to acquire it. The ultimate success of each student's voyage depends upon the amount of effort and enthusiasm he puts into it.

To the underclassmen, this represents a challenge—to make the most of the opportunities afforded at Hendrick Hudson. To the seniors—don't regard graduation as the culmination of your voyage. The learning experience can continue throughout your life if you let it. Above all "Don't give up the ship!"
